 - Using a search engine to find information (75%)
 - Using email to communicate (75%)
 - Shutting down the computer (75%)
- About three quarters of respondents plan to apply for ACP

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

There is significant demand for digital literacy and computer training among our Pilot's Senior participants.

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

Teaching people with little to no experience to use a computer requires patience, compassion, face-to-face interaction, and plenty of time.

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

We scheduled 3-hour sessions for the Pilot, however we ran out of time at every location.

Varying levels of skill around the room required personalized technical assistance. More than one technical assistant is needed.

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

Curriculum pieces should be broken down into shorter sessions over time rather than completing 3 hours of training in one day - especially for Senior audiences.

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

We did not take mice with us to the pilot, though we wish we had. Many new computer users had difficulty using a touchpad.

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

Be mindful that new computer users may have some anxiety or fear about learning new technology. Extra compassion and patience are key.

Key Takeaways and Lessons Learned

Two of the four Pilot locations did not have reliable Internet which prevented us from completing the full curriculum.

Visit location in advance to test broadband connection and wifi.

On the horizon...

- Adapt curriculum and approach based on evaluation and lessons learned from pilot. Consider how to scale-up. Purchased an additional 10 laptops.
- Continue follow-up sessions with pilot participants.
- Cristy attending NDEET's Advancing Digital Access Train-the-Trainer Workshop as part of the Northeast Cohort in October.
- Help convene and facilitate “Digital Inclusion Coalitions” as sustainable community-led ecosystems (using NDIA's Digital Inclusion Coalition Guidebook).
- Plan to work with Chester County Housing Authority to create a computer lab and ongoing trainings + tech support for Chatham residents.
